A SEASON OF GRACE, FAVOR & KINGDOM PARTNERSHIPS

Dear Partner,

Reflecting on this season, our hearts overflow with praise for God's immense grace and favor upon Campus Crusade for Christ Eswatini. He continues to open unprecedented doors for the Gospel, allowing us to see lives transformed across universities, local communities, marketplace leadership, and beyond.

We extend our deepest, heartfelt gratitude to every partner, supporter, and volunteer whose dedication makes this work possible. We are especially honored and grateful for the distinguished guests who graced the ABPWL Ignite Conference—most notably Her Royal Highness Queen Inkhosikati Make LaNgangaza, the Eswatini women parliamentarians, and the executive leaders whose presence and participation brought immense encouragement.

Our ministry is richer because of the strategic body-of-Christ partnerships God has granted us. We deeply appreciate key allies such as EHC for walking alongside us in ministry and leveraging Jesus Film resources to reach the lost. We are equally humbled by the recognition from The Redeemed Christian Church of God (RCCG) Eswatini, who honored us with the Corporate Kingdom Partnership Award during their 30th Anniversary.

This edition captures a vibrant season of impact: student movements equipping thousands, targeted sports and transit outreach models, expanding digital evangelism, and critical leadership gatherings. Above all, we thank Almighty God for the partners, leaders, and friends He has aligned with us to advance the Great Commission in Eswatini.

In His Grace and Service,

Sbusiso Mlambo

100% Sent Alumni Camp

Beyond the Camp: 35 Graduates Take Ownership of The Great Commission

What happens when campus discipleship moves into the professional world?

From July 31 to August 1, 2026, roughly 35 alumni of the 100% Sent student movement gathered among the peaceful hills of Malolotja for a transformative two-day retreat. Far more than a typical reunion, the event marked a historic milestone: the gathering was organized and led entirely by the alumni themselves.

Seeing former students step up to handle everything from logistics to session facilitation was a powerful testimony to the depth of their training. It proved that the investment made in them during their university years is bearing lasting fruit. They were no longer simply recipients of ministry; they had become proactive leaders creating spaces for spiritual growth and mutual encouragement.

Throughout the weekend, the overarching theme was clear: graduation is not the conclusion of the discipleship journey, but the launchpad for a lifetime of Gospel influence. Participants wrestled with the reality that being a disciple of Jesus isn't restricted to student groups or campus activities. Whether working in corporate offices, serving in local churches, raising families, or engaging in community outreach, every sphere of life is an active mission field.

A particularly moving dynamic of the camp emerged when participants divided into focused circles based on their specific areas of passion. Some alumni expressed a deep burden to bridge the gap between campus life and local church ministry, while others shared strategies for reaching high school youth navigating modern pressures. In these organic discussions, real-world examples came to life—such as living out faith during a Monday morning staff meeting or mentoring young professionals facing career crossroads.

The zeal and courage on display at Malolotja showed that these graduates desire lives defined by spiritual significance rather than simple career advancement. As one participant captured so succinctly during the gathering: "The greatest lesson from this camp is that discipleship does not end at university; it is a life sentence."

Looking ahead, the true impact of this retreat will echo far beyond those two days in Malolotja. As these 35 equipped alumni intentionally disciple others in their respective workplaces, families, and neighborhoods, the vision of 100% Sent will multiply across society, sending a new wave of marketplace leaders and mentors into the world.

Since 2018, Campus Crusade for Christ Eswatini has committed itself to using the Study with Success (SWS) program as a bridge to equip students academically and share the Gospel. Founded by Urs Wolf in Switzerland, the program has been taught in over 50 countries to over 200,000 participants. Across Eswatini, it has been taught in major local universities and schools to help students develop study techniques, master time management, and build strong spiritual foundations.

In the second and third quarters of this year, the Student Life Ministry (SLM) team conducted SWS seminars across six educational institutions. These included Beaconkop Primary School, Mbuluzi Primary School, Enhlanguisweni High School, Ntshanini High School, Somnjalose High School, and Eswatini Medical Christian University. Through these engagements, a total of 1,143 students were equipped with practical learning strategies and exposed to the Gospel, with 392 students praying to receive Jesus Christ as their personal Savior.

The impact resonated across every age group. At Beaconkop Primary School, 137 learners were trained and 116 received Christ, while Mbuluzi Primary saw 56 learners exposed to the Gospel with 45 receiving Christ. At the high school level, Enhlanguisweni High reached 450 students with 128 receiving Christ, Ntshanini High reached 150 students with 61 receiving Christ, and Somnjalose High reached 200 students with 35 making commitments to Christ. In addition to the students, 26 teachers across Beaconkop and Mbuluzi Primary Schools were trained to support their learners' holistic development.

"The positive impact of your work since last year motivated us to invite you back. We have observed that the program has been highly beneficial to both our students and teaching staff, contributing significantly to their growth and development." Noted Mr. Sizwe Ndzinisa, a headteacher from Beaconcop Primary.

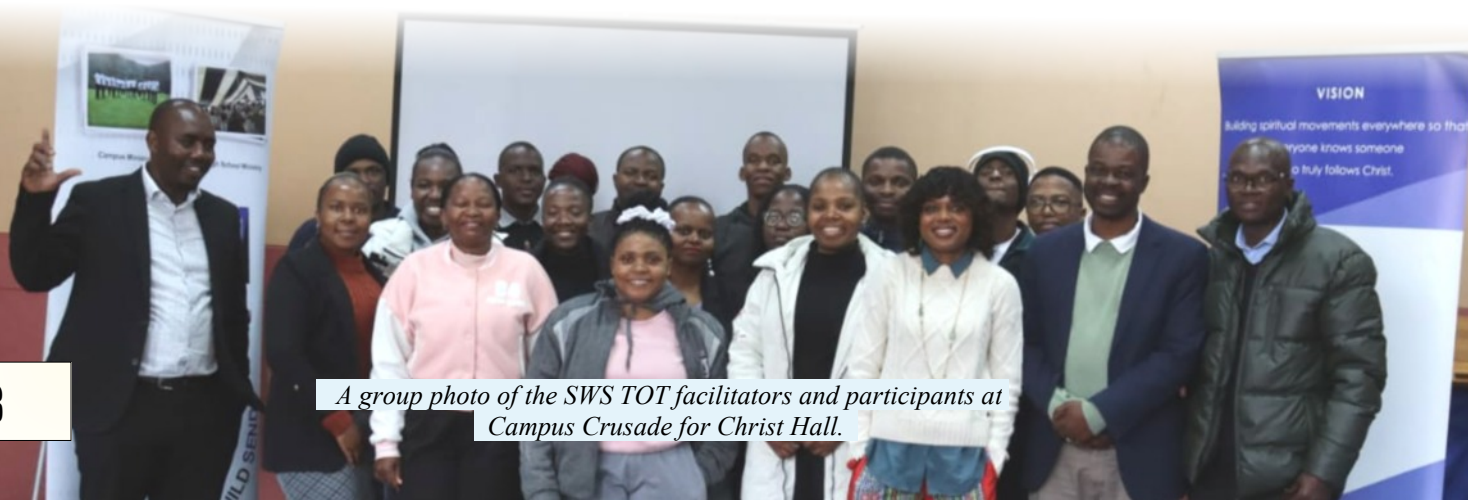

A key strategy of the SLM team is using first-year orientation opportunities at local universities to equip incoming students with SWS techniques right at the start of their academic journey. This year, the seminar was held during orientation at Eswatini Medical Christian University, where 150 freshmen were trained in academic discipline, healthy habits, and spiritual focus, resulting in 7 students receiving Christ.

As the demand escalates for SWS seminars around the country, the need for qualified facilitators has grown significantly. To address this, the SLM team conducted an SWS Training of Trainers (TOT) at the Campus Crusade for Christ hall. A total of 25 volunteers and alumni were trained through practical demonstrations and peer practice, and they are now expected to host and facilitate seminars in schools and communities across the nation.

We thank God for His grace and guidance throughout these seminars and for every life transformed through the SWS program this year. Looking to the future, we project even greater reach as our newly equipped trainers step into classrooms, bridging academic growth with the power of the Gospel to transform the next generation of leaders.

COMMISSIONED

The most exciting day in the life of every student is the day of graduating. It is the time whereby one reflects at the hardships they had to endure to reach the milestone that they have acquired. As they receive the certificate, that piece of paper feels heavy not because of mass but because of significance. If every certification brings tears of joy to the receiver imagine how much more receiving a certificate of discipleship does?

Eswatini Medical Christian University has an in Campus program that seeks to disciple students in their walk with Christ on weekly basis called Morning Dew. The SLM team has been part of this program bringing resources and expertise alongside other movements to equip the students every Tuesday.

On 31 July, 98 students graduated from Morning Dew after 4 years of consistent weekly meetings, bible study, prayers and discipleship.

This milestone represented far more than the completion of a curriculum; it marked a profound commissioning into lifelong Kingdom service. As they step out into hospitals, clinics, corporate offices, and communities across Eswatini, they do so not merely as qualified professionals, but as equipped disciple-makers.

Their graduation stands as a powerful testament to what happens when various campus movements unite to raise a generation committed to taking the Gospel beyond campus walls and fulfilling the Great Commission in every sphere of society.

Paradise: Transformed to Transform

By Paradise

When I was a student, I started attending discipleship meetings because of a classmate. One day, Mrs. Amu asked me to stay behind for a one-on-one conversation. She asked me some uncomfortable but important questions about my life, my schoolwork, and my faith.

At that time, I would say my life was a mess. I was taking drugs and struggling in many areas of my life. During that one-on-one meeting, Mrs. Amu prayed with me and encouraged me to rededicate my life to Christ.

I made the decision to ask the Lord to be my Lord and Savior, and since then, I have seen my life transformed. Christ set me free from drugs and changed me in every dimension of my life. He also helped me academically, and I graduated with a good distinction.

Today, I am grateful that the same Christ who found me can find others. As a graduate, I now have the privilege of helping young people encounter Christ and experience transformation in their own lives.

I am currently discipling students and meeting with them every Tuesday from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. My prayer is that, just as Christ found me, He will find many more young people, and that I will remain faithful in walking with them through their journey of life and faith.

My story is a testimony that Christ transforms lives. He transformed my life, and now I desire to be a vessel through whom He can transform others.

I was once lost, but Christ found me. I was broken, but He transformed me. Now, I am committed to helping others find Him and be transformed.

Victory Beyond The Game

AIA & GCM COLLABORATE FOR

VICTORY BEYOND THE GAME

Every May, Global Church Movements steps into a focused season of church planting—a time dedicated to empowering the local Body of Christ to reach new communities through evangelism and discipleship. This year, God opened an exciting new door for us to connect with people right where they gather: the sports field.

With the excitement of the 2026 FIFA World Cup building globally, GCM partnered with Athletes in Action across Africa to leverage sports as a vehicle for the Gospel, launching the Victory Beyond The Game campaign.

The vision officially kicked off in Pretoria, South Africa, where 29 ministry leaders from across the SADC region gathered for an intensive strategy and training workshop. Representing Eswatini, GCM Leader Sibusiso Mlambo and AIA Intern Leader Manqoba Dlamini attended to learn, connect, and bring the vision home.

They returned with over 100 Ministry Kits—each equipped with a Hope ball, an air pump, and a Holy Bible—designed to serve as practical, conversational bridge-builders in local communities.

Kindling Home Movements

What began as a strategy meeting in Pretoria quickly transformed into a vibrant nationwide movement the moment the team returned home. On May 15, the first wave of momentum hit as 23 passionate believers gathered from various churches, constituencies, and institutions for our inaugural local training. These men and women came hungry to learn how a simple game could unlock hearts for Jesus.

As the vision caught fire, training sessions rapidly expanded across Eswatini. We had the privilege of equipping student movement leaders, Campus Crusade for Christ staff, and strategic ministry partners like Every Home for Christ on different days. By the end of the campaign, 13 distinct training events had taken place across the country, equipping a total of 331 believers with the tools and confidence to share the Gospel through sports.

Champions Implementing

The true beauty of this movement lies in what happened after the official trainings ended. Inspired by the vision, several of these newly trained champions didn't wait—they immediately stepped out into their local courts and dusty neighborhood fields to put their faith into action. Using the ministry kits as an opening door, they began building relationships with young people who might otherwise never step foot inside a church.

Pastor David from Every Home for Christ Kunene stood out for his commitment—faithfully traveling across different regions and rural villages to implement sports outreach in local communities. To support these ongoing efforts and new discipleship groups, 10 Bibles were directly donated to EHC.

Meanwhile, Student-Led Movements (SLM) team brought the campaign to the national school games finals at Somhlolo National Stadium, where over 10,000 students were gathered. The team used the ministry kits to engage young people and share the Gospel right on the grounds. "With the ball and wristbands, it was much easier and more relatable to reach the learners," noted SLM leader Mancoba Dlamini.

The Victory Beyond The Game campaign also afforded an opportunity to share the gospel physically in the field when Campus Crusade for Christ faced Every Home for Christ in a friendly match which allowed non-believers to also attend and hear the good news.

Through these sports encounters, 9 new small groups have already been established, giving young believers a space to be discipled and grounded in God's Word. What started as a simple soccer ball and a Bible in the hands of a willing believer is now generating eternal transformation across our nation. We are deeply grateful for your faithful partnership and prayers, which continue to make these stories of redemption possible.

A MOVEMENT AMONG TAXI DRIVERS

One of the most encouraging outcomes of the collaboration between Athletes in Action and Global Church Movements during Church Planting Month has been witnessing ordinary believers become passionate ambassadors of the Gospel. Among the many inspiring testimonies, the story of Malungisa—a former kombi driver—stands out.

While listening to a national radio broadcast designed to mobilize churches for evangelism, Malungisa was deeply moved. Eager to take part in what God was doing, he called the station to request a Movement Maker Kit. Shortly after, our team visited one of his small group meetings to train Malungisa and his peers on using the kit effectively for evangelism and discipleship.

During our visit, the group spoke candidly about the harsh realities of the transport industry. They highlighted the spiritual darkness among drivers, noting that many believers had abandoned the profession altogether due to intense pressure and hardship.

The training infused the group with renewed vision and excitement.

Malungisa and his fellow believers realized that God had uniquely positioned them to reach the very community they once belonged to. Newly equipped, they committed to re-entering the transport sector intentionally, using the Movement Maker Kit alongside Campus Crusade for Christ's MC2 framework to share the Gospel and disciple new believers.

The impact quickly multiplied. Mr. Myeni, a member of the group, shared a vision to launch a discipleship gathering in his own neighborhood. His dedication demonstrates that a genuine movement is already underway—one where believers not only share their faith but actively train others to do the same.

Across the country, champions are embracing this vision. Through field reports and photographs, we continue to see lives transformed, small groups planted, and disciple-making movements taking deep root. This powerful story serves as a vivid reminder: when ordinary believers are equipped and empowered, God uses them to spark extraordinary movements for His Kingdom.

Eswatini Women Leaders Initiative leader Ncamsile Nzima with the design team also appreciated all attendees as did Campus Crusade for Christ Eswatini board members; Mr. Sydney Kunene and Mr. Zachariah Mthethwa.

At the commission of Ignite, 94 committed to become Ignite champions (LIFE partners) with 50 choosing leadership, 56 influence, 48 finance and 51 in expertise.

The diverse international representation fostered rich cross-border networking and strategic alignment. Throughout the four days, participants engaged in transformative sessions designed to align professional influence with kingdom impact.

Way Forward & Next Steps

To sustain this momentum, the Africa Women Initiative and Campus Crusade for Christ Eswatini will prioritize:

Eswatini Ignite Movement: Guiding the 94 newly committed Ignite champions to pioneer an Ignite movement in Eswatini and beyond.

Regional Networks: Building active networking circles among leaders across Eswatini, South Africa, Ethiopia, Zimbabwe, and Kenya.

Resource Deployment: Equipping regional teams with Significant Women and Jesus Film tools.

This inaugural conference successfully established a strong network of empowered women leaders. Through structured follow-up, the vision launched at Happy Valley Hotel will continue to drive lasting impact across Africa.

Comments from Attendees

“As parliamentarians we are so grateful to have been part of this magnificent event which has not only offered an opportunity for us to learn but also elevated the country’s image. We have also filled the LIFE Commitment forms and would want to emphasize that we will do exactly what we have committed there and will be waiting for follow ups. Thank you so much to everyone that contributed.”

- Mrs. Lindiwe Dlamini (Senate President of the Kingdom of Eswatini)

“Our time in Eswatini was incredibly joyful and transformational. The highlight of the program was the clear leadership of the Holy Spirit and the manifestation of God’s power which brought great spiritual and professional revival to attendees. Upon returning to Ethiopia, we successfully shared this deep spiritual and professional insight through an online training session tailored for Ethiopian professional women. Overall, both the conference and the subsequent online training were highly successful and fruitful.

- Ms. Abenet Tesega (Ethiopia)

“It was a privilege and an honour to receive their Majesties and to welcome the many guests who came to Ezulwini. Their presence brought significant economic vibrancy to our town, with a positive impact on our hotels, the neighbouring mall and other local businesses. We are grateful to all the speakers who generously shared their knowledge, experiences and personal journeys. Their contributions impacted us in many dimensions—physically, mentally, financially and spiritually. One of my takeaways include that we must be good stewards of every resource entrusted to us: Whether it is money, opportunities, relationships, knowledge, time or influence, we are called to manage what has been entrusted to us responsibly and wisely”

Beyond the Ledger

Empowering Believers for Ongoing Evangelism and Discipleship

What happens when street evangelism is formalized and accompanied by proper discipleship? Driven by a deep desire to share the Gospel, our bookkeeper, Hlengiwe Masuku, stepped out to lead ministry beyond her daily administrative responsibilities. Recognizing that effective outreach must produce lasting fruit, she initiated an innovative digital mission called Operations Vuleka Masango. This strategy utilizes WhatsApp to systematically disciple new converts, follow up with contacts, and train local ministry leaders across Eswatini.

This integrated approach was put into practice through two targeted outreaches at the Pigg's Peak bus rank and surrounding community during June and July 2026, organized in close partnership with the Women Ministry and operations teams. During the initial outreach on June 6, the team strategically deployed segments from the Jesus Film Project to engage commuters and residents. Through these visual and textual presentations of the Gospel, the ministry achieved an exposure of 83 people, with 32 individuals making personal decisions to accept Jesus Christ as their Lord and Savior.

Demonstrating a commitment to long-term spiritual growth, the team returned on July 10 alongside the Operation Vuleka Masango group to reconnect with and nurture these new believers. Engaging an exposure pool of 43 people, they successfully anchored 11 individuals into ongoing salvation and structured discipleship pipelines.

The July outreach also provided a dynamic training ground for three newly equipped young believers experiencing street evangelism for the first time. Crucially, during follow-up visits, the team discovered that despite lacking mobile phones for digital follow-up, converts from June remained steadfast in their faith and had actively begun attending local churches.

To date, Operations Vuleka Masango has equipped nearly 50 believers online in discipleship. The vision continues to expand through local church partnerships; notably, Pastor Mrs. Mathonsi of Mpolonjeni Emmanuel Wesleyan Church embraced the training, requested sessions for her congregation, and plans to introduce the discipleship framework across her church's national leadership network.

Training Leaders Who Train Others

The Jesus Film Project in Eswatini is intentionally building a sustainable movement by shifting its primary focus toward empowering local leaders across the nation. The premise is simple: if more leaders are trained to use Jesus Film resources, they will reach and disciple far more people than local staff ever could on their own. The ministry is therefore deliberately equipping pastors, ministry leaders, chaplains, and local church champions across different constituencies and institutions with the Jesus Film Project App and small-group discipleship strategies.

By decentralizing outreach, these equipped trainers are taking full ownership of evangelism in their own spheres, extending the Gospel into distant communities without needing staff present on the ground. Once equipped with these digital tools, local leaders are immediately putting them into practice:

In Mahlanya, newly equipped leader Pastor Canaan Mnisi took the initiative at Lobamba Lomdzala Church of the Nazarene to host a screening of The Story of Jesus, where 86 out of 105 children prayed to receive Christ as Savior. In another community, Pastor Dupoint integrated the app into his ministry, using The Story of Jesus for Children to share the Gospel with 49 kids, all of whom responded to the invitation. Leaders like Pastor Ngubeni have also adopted these digital resources to drive ongoing small-group discipleship within their congregations.

Through these intentional equipping sessions, dozens of multiplying leaders have been trained. Their immediate efforts have already reached over 170 people, resulting in more than 135 decisions for Christ and establishing a continuous, self-sustaining network of Gospel trainers across Eswatini.

DIGITAL STRATEGIES TRAINING IN TANZANIA

From May 15 to May 20, 2026, Digital Strategies (DS) team member Thandie Shabangu represented Campus Crusade for Christ Eswatini at the regional Digital Strategies Summit in Tanzania. The summit equipped attendees with practical, forward-thinking strategies to leverage digital platforms, emerging tools, and online spaces for targeted evangelism and discipleship.

A central focus of the conference was understanding digital audience personas and utilizing digital platforms to address key missional gaps. Recognizing that youth represent a critical mission field in Eswatini, the DS team is pivoting toward creating authentic, youth-centered content on platforms like TikTok, Instagram, WhatsApp, and YouTube. These platforms will address real-life issues young people navigate daily—including identity, anxiety, purpose, and faith.

Moving forward, Digital Strategies aims to build a sustainable, integrated approach to online ministry:

Cross-Strategy Collaboration: Connecting online contacts directly with physical ministry teams, such as Student-Led Movements (SLM) on campuses or Global Church Movements (GCM) in local communities, ensuring a seamless bridge from digital engagement to face-to-face fellowship.

Intentional Follow-Up: Establishing a robust response system to turn online gospel interest into real transformation by connecting new believers to local mentors and discipleship groups.

Financial Sustainability: Building strategic partnerships and structured project budgets to ensure long-term digital ministry growth.

The insights gained from the Tanzania summit mark an exciting step forward as Digital Strategies enhances CCC Eswatini's overall mission to reach, equip, and disciple in a rapidly changing world.
